

WOMEN'S ROYAL NAVAL SERVICE

[POST WAR]

Two of two

The following images come from the promotional video:

'A Day in the life of a Wren'

Vera along with her friend Pat have a trip in mind.

They pass through the dockyard gate.

They walk through the park towards the beach.

Vera points toward the Solent.

She is pointing to a ship...

...it is the battleship HMS
King George V.

Pat has a 'friend' on board the ship.

It is 'Thursday' of the pay week.

Vera is involved in this duty.

She sits behind the pay ledger...

...and reads out the names of the sailors and the amounts they are to be paid.

When work is over it is time for a game of tennis.

On the way to the pavilion Vera watches some beginners at cricket.

They are being coached by Royal Marine instructors.

Meanwhile Pat has gone down to the swimming pool.

It is now the evening and Vera is going to meet a male friend.

His name is Mike...

...they go to the NAAFI club.

On the way upstairs, they stop to look at some of the paintings on the wall.

Whilst there, they play a game of darts.

Vera leaves Mike watching the billiards while she goes to the reading & writing room.

There, she writes a letter home.

Back to the dance floor...

...to have a dance or two.

Soon it's time to head back to barracks, they head along the beach, they say their goodbyes at the dockyard gate.

In the Wren's regulating office, the duty Wren checks in all those who have been out.

Vera says goodnight!
